THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1869.

ducements to New Subscribers.

We desire, if possible, to make The News, which is already without exception the cheapest newspaper in the South, a regular visitor in every well regulated household in this and the adjoining States. As an inducement to the plant-ers to subscribe to THE NEWS before the expiration of the present year, we have arranged with Messrs. Walker, Evans & Cogswell, the publish-ers of the RURAL CAROLINIAN, to supply that new and superb agricultural magazine, together with

THE DAILY NEWS and the RUBAL CAROLINIAN

THE TRI-WEEKLY NEWS and the RURAL Com LINIAN, One man the two publications may be subscriptions to the two publications may be sent either to the proprietors of The News, or to the proprietors of the RURAL CAROLINIAN. But persons desiring to avail themselves of this offer aust do so before the first of January next, as the arrangement will not be extended beyond

-It is announced that Secretary Boutwell ha successfully inaugurated a sinking fund for the payment of the national obligations, and there is already on deposit in the Treasury over eighteen millions of dollars to the credit of the sinking fund in gold interest bonds and accrued interest thereon, waiting definite Congressional action.

—Sixty bodies have been recovered from and near the wreck of the steamer Stonewall. Indignation is intense against Captain John T. Washington, of Submarine Steamer No. 13, who passed the burning wreek at the time of the disaster, and when, it is said, many lives might have been saved, but without offering any aid. It is report ted that a vigilance committee has been formed at Cape Girardeau to lynch him on his return up the river. Pacific Railroad deny the truthfulness of the charge in a Chicago paper that Congress-will, next session, be asked by that company to appropriate several millions of dollars for aid for constructing the road. They say no appropriation has been asked nor suggested by them, and all they have heretofore sought, and all they propose to ask o Congress at the coming session, is the right of way through the public domain.

—The report of the commission, appointed un-er a resolution of Congress to examine into the condition of the Central and Union Pacific Railroads, represents that both of the roads are in good average condition, as compared with the generality of railroads in the United States, but notes various deficiencies, not generally necessary to be remedled immediately, and estimates the cost of supplying them at $576,650 for the Central, and $1,536,100 for the Union Pacific.

-Private letters from leading European Republicans indicate that the recent revolutionary out break in the Austrian province of Dalmatia, which would appear to be more serious than the cable dispatches show, is in accordance with a plan long since indicated by Mazzini. It consists in the commencement of a European move-ment in the East rather than has hitherto been the case at Paris or other of the great centres The letters referred to state that Menotti Garibaldi, eldest son of the Italian liberator, has been for some time actively at work organizing aid fo the Dalmatians. The revolutionary programme proposes the establishment of a Federal Republic to consist of the Sciavonic provinces of the Austrian and Turkish Empires.

-The London Times Joresees that the under standing between Prim and Serrano must end. The election of a king affords the best opportunity they could have for a dissolution of partnershi which could otherwise hardly be expected without a disastrons outbreak. The Unionists have no chance of success. After a week's vain debate in the Cortes, the Ministers of that party have resigned. Serrano must follow them, and thea Prin remains master, a situation which suits hinf; at least he wishes to have the substance of power under some one invested with its semblance. For the past year Serrano has served as a c is for his ambition. If Serrano withdraws and the Duke of Genoa is not brought in, then Prim stands forth exposed to the envy of the great and rancor of the small; alone, between friends who do not trus him, and enemies who, when the time comes, will

The emigration of Chinese into California, is asserted by the San Francisco Bulletin, is by no means extraordinary, and is not increasing at such a rate as to excite alarm as to the influence of the Asiatics upon society. During the first eight months of 1869, the arrivals of Chinese at San Prancisco amounted to 11,000, which propor-tion would give 16,500 for the arrivals during the entire year. The number was only exceeded in 1852, when the arrivals amounted to 18,434. The next largest was in 1854, when over 15,000 land ed. The arrivals during the five years previons to 1860, as compared with all earlier years, up to 1852, it is stated, exhibit a considera-ble falling off, and but for the marked increase in arrivals during the present year, it is emigration was abating. The complete statistics show that while the arrivals from 1852 to 1863, init is further contended that large numbers of Chinamen have returned to their native land, and to these most important subjects the West also have died, so that the Chinese residents are not so numerous as might be supposed.

—A Richmond letter of Saturday last says:

"The passenger train on the Richmond, Preder-leksburg and Potomac Railroad, which has of late rarely exceeded two coaches, consisted on the 26th of seven well packed enches, and the same remarkable movement South the previous day taxed the capacity of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad train to its utmost. The move-ment of the negroes to the far South, under the inducements of a more genial clime and high wages, is assuming large proportions, and if it increases in the same ratio till next summer, the Weils faction in Virginia will then have completely lost its rank and file. The colored labor of the country is gravitating to the localities it is best adapted to, and leaving a clear field here for the Northern and European omigrant. I am told by raitroad men that the negroes are daily leaving the State, under contracts, in parties varying from twenty-five to one hundred. They do not all go directly to the cotton field and sugar plan tation-five hundred, for instance, being called for, and rapidly responding, to work on a Chattanooga railroad. They will ultimately, no doubt, fulfil their mission in the culture of cane and cotton. The demand for them for that purpose was great in the days of slavery, and it is now reviving, to exceed, perhaps, all former example."

It is convenient to a certain class of po litical writers to sneer at the efforts put forth for the establishment of a closer union' between the West and the South. To attach any importance to the various conventions recently held, whose object was a closer union between the sections, would have been a prejudice to the interests under their patronage. For the West is already a well nigh overshadowing power; the South is already rebuilding her ruins and renewing her harvests; an alliance of the two would control the finance and the policy of the republic. The sphere entered by the new copartnership would afford them a monopoly against which all the resources of New England craft and bluster would be expended in Such a coalition may not be established speedily; but sooner or later it must take place. Notice has remed the two sections too intimately to allow of their artificial severance. They gravitate toward each other; and perchance the abortive attempt to accelerate the movement may arise simply from the circumstance that it is influenced | Cabin, gives its conclusions in the following by causes which operate with the steadiness of a law. But let it be remembered that a force which cannot be intensified, cannot be arrested by human expedients. An avalanche cannot be hurried; but let not the simple cotter below take courage from this fact. The ponderous accumulation to which days and nights and months and years have contributed their stores, is already in motion; it is coming down silently, solemnly, like a mountain cloud; soon it will be upor him, and there is no bulwark he can erect that will stay its progress for a moment, or prevent the overthrow it brings.

The Southern people, who are in a minor ity, are constrained to seek for protection and a real restoration, in a concert of action with others. Nor have we occasion for despair in the failure of similar attempts in former years. The reasons for our ill success are apparent now. Thus, for example, we vainly hoped, during the war, that the interests of England would lead her to interfere in the struggle. We did not know how deeply the working classes of that country had, been prejudiced against our cause, nor how thoroughly they had been persuaded that the abolition of African slavery would cheapen cotton and glevate the fac tory laborer. The system which reared the products of the South was thought to infect the free hands that wrought upon them-to enslave the swart artisans of Lancashire, and to depress the social status of Lowell's

With cotton sticking to their curls." Thus the appeal of the South to England was neutralized, and the statesmen most favorable to oar cause were impotent against an unreasoning, groundless jealousy of sta-

Again, the recent failure of the Western Democracy to renew the political fellowship of the West and South, is susceptible of an equally simple explanation. Mr. Secretary Boutwell, in his Philadelphia speech, struck the key-note and sounded the rallying cry of the Republican campaign in Ohio. The opinion was industriously circulated that the Democrats were repudintors; that the credit of the government, and so the lightening of the burdens of taxation, depended upon the success of the Radical party; that the most creditable reductions in the national expenditures and the public debt had already taken place under their manipulations-and so, without exactly convincing the people that all was right, he succeeded in persuading them that public interests might be injured if any change of policy should now take place. Yet the appeal to the interests and fears of an overtaxed people but partially succeeded. There was, after all, a Democratic gain-a sensible approach of the West to the South-a defeat that augured victory hereafter. It is folly to prate, as the Times does, that the "ties of trade" and the "common in-"terest" will not eventually result in a compact between the South and Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and the other great Western States. It is folly to reproduce the traditions of the war as a proof that such a union cannot be effected. If the two sections have "common "ends to serve and common enterprises in "view for their promotion," (and such are, indeed, the facts of the case,) what "patri-"otic duty" now exists to prevent the coalition of their counsels and energies for the attainment of a common good? Narrow observers fail to recognize the fact that the South has become less and less concerned in matters of party politica-the only difficulty that now divides the two sections. Whatever interest we may have in the success of the followers of Mr. Hoffman or Mr. Pendleton, it arises less from partisan considerations than from the assurance that the Radical policy of repression and proscription is coming to an end. But the interests that concern us most are those which we cherish in common with the West. The people of that vast region, as well as we, desire to be relieved from oppressive taxation, which rests with special weight upon the agricultural classes; they desire that the conditions of their former prosperity shall be restored; they desire that the current of trade so long diverted by tariffs of protec-

to these most important subjects the West and the South are not far apart. And they are coming nearer together. Their union is a necessity. And the commercial conventions and political overtures, which the Northern papers now affect to sneer at, are preparing the way for it. If they have not restored the broken limb to its former integ rity, they are the knitting of the bone.

A Rival Telegraph Line.

The fact that the telegraphs of the entire South are controlled exclusively by a single overgrown and greedy corporation has, ever since the close of the war, been an intolera ble incubus, not only upon newspaper enterprise, but upon the general business of the community, which has come, now-a-days, to depend largely upon the free and frequent use of the wires. It was with pleasure therefore, that we met yesterday Col. G. H. Ellery, the energetic President of the Frank lin (opposition) Telegraph Company, who people to co-operate in the construction of a rival telegraph line along the seaboard, from Washington to New Orleans. The Franklin Company has already its network of telegraphs in full and successful operation all over the North, and by a combination with the French Cable Company, it has inaugurated an effective opposition to the Western Union Company, the result of which has already been a material reduction of tolls, all 'round. As soon as the Southern connections of the Franklin Company are estabished, its competitive powers will be complete, and the Southern public may share in the benefits which have already resulted from its operations at the North. Col. Ellery informs us that half the capital required to construct the new seaboard line has already been subscribed in Philadelphia; and we wish him speedy success in raising the re-

Mrs. Stowe's disgusting slauder of the duction of the letters from Lady Byron to Mrs. Leigh, which we publish to-day. The New York Tribune, which can hardly be accused of any harshness of feeling or prejudice against the author of Uncle Tom's emphatic sentence: "We can imagine only one kind of evidence capable of upsetting "the conclusions of these letters-and that is a confession by Mrs. Leigh, which, it is "fair to presume, Mrs. Stowe cannot produce, or we should have heard of it long

Tue State General Assembly will be asked guarantee bonds of the Blue Ridge Railroad to the amount of $9,000,000. This will-it is hoped-insure the completion of the road. But it cannot be completed much under three years, during which period the interest on the guaranteed bonds must be paid by the State. The interest at six per cent. will be $540,000 a year, to raise which the State taxes must be doubled.

road, the Air Line Railroad, the Asheville Railroad, and the South Carolina Central Railroad, will apply for a State guarantee as soon as the Legislature meets. The whole amount asked for may be about twenty millions-including the nine million dollars for the Blue Ridge Railroad.

D'ALEMBERT used to complain that "men so completely exhausted their industry in canvassing for places, as to have none left for the discharge of their duties." Let the exhaustion be of both honesty and industry, and the epigram strikes home to the Radical officials in this supremely Radical State.
